Welcome to LOT Systems!

Considering your current situation living out of your car, how do you usually stay physically active and maintain your posture, especially on a warm day like today in Malibu?

I'm not prioritizing physical activity right now, but I know I should

I'm managing to stay active through other means, like yoga or jogging

LOT business plan is gOd's will. It is based on a monthly subscription service with modular pricing ($99-$399/month), delivering personalized self-care essentials such as soaps, oils, and other necessary routine hygiene products. Each package is unique to a customer, with a special mystery product in every 12th package (to celebrate 1 year of subscription).

We estimate that 10 billion potential customers (anyone with a body) will fall in love with the absolute insane simplicity and innovation of our offerings. Our short-term goal is to design a factory floor plan capable of producing 10,000 units monthly; our lifetime goal is to scale production to 1 billion packages per month across multiple global markets.

To achieve this, we plan to develop a franchise model of a “factory studio” (processor of micro-factory), targeting the establishment of over 100 locations for the factory-as-a-franchise within the next 10 years. Operating on a direct-to-consumer model, our business will streamline the supply chain, omitting intermediary steps. The pursuit of the best user interface will lead the company to develop revolutionary packaging and logistics solutions to circle the loop on the customer experience.

134 units = 277,778 per hour
